We are discontinuing the Google Sign-In JavaScript Platform Library for web. The library will be unavailable for download after the March 31, 2023 deprecation date. Instead, use the new Google Identity Services for Web. By default, newly created Client IDs are now blocked from using the older Platform Library, existing Client IDs are unaffected. New Client IDs created before July 29th, 2022 can set `plugin name` to enable use of the Google Platform Library. Stay organized with collections Save and categorize content based on your preferences. To integrate Google Sign-In into your Android app, configure Google Sign-In and add a button to your app's layout that starts the sign-in flow. Before you begin Configure a Google API Console project and set up your Android Studio project. Configure Google Sign-in and the Google Sign-In to request the user data required by your app. For example, to configure Google Sign-In to request users' ID and basic profile information, create a GoogleSignInOptions object with the DEFAULT SIGN IN parameter. To request the user's ID, email address, and basic // profile. ID and basic profile are included in DEFAULT SIGN IN. GoogleSignInOptions gso = new GoogleSignInOptions.Builder(GoogleSignInOptions.DEFAULT SIGN IN). requestEmail(). build(); If you need to request additional scopes to access Google APIs, specify them with requestScopes. For the best user experience, on sign-in, only request the scopes that are required for your app to minimally function. Request any additional scopes only when you need them, so that your users see the consent screen in the context of an action they performed. See Requesting Additional Scopes. Then, also in your sign-in activity's onCreate method, create a Google SignInClient object with the options you specified. // Build a Google SignInClient with the options specified by gso. mGoogleSignInClient = GoogleSignInAccount will be non-null. GoogleSignInAccount will be non-null. GoogleSignInAccount account = GoogleSignIn.getLastSignedInAccount (this); updateUI(account); If GoogleSignInAccount returns a GoogleSignInAccount object (rather than null), the user has already signed in to your app with Google. Update your UI accordingly—that is, hide the sign-in button, launch your main activity, or whatever is appropriate for your app. If GoogleSignIn.getLastSignedInAccount returns null, the user has not yet signed in to your app with Google. Update your UI to display the Google Sign-in button. Note: If you need to detect changes to a user's auth state that happen outside your app, such as access token or ID token revocation, or to perform cross-device sign-in, you might also call GoogleSignInClient.silentSignIn when your app starts. Add the Google Sign-in button to your app Add the SignInButton in your application's layout: Optional: If you are using the default sign-in button graphic instead of providing your own sign-in button for your application's layout: Optional: If you are using the default sign-in button in your application's layout: Optional: If you are using the default sign-in button in your application's layout: Optional: If you are using the default sign-in button in your application's layout: Optional: If you are using the default sign-in button in your application's layout: Optional: If you are using the default sign-in button in your application's layout: Optional: If you are using the default sign-in button in your application's layout: Optional: If you are using the default sign-in button in your application's layout: Optional: If you are using the default sign-in button in your application's layout: Optional: If you are using the default sign-in button is your application's layout: Optional: If you are using the default sign-in button in your application's layout: Optional: If you are using the default sign-in button in your application's layout: Optional: If you are using the default sign-in button is your application's layout: Optional: If you are using the default sign-in button is your application's layout: Optional: If you are using the default sign-in button is your application's layout: Optional: If you are using the default sign-in button is your application's layout: Optional: If you are using the default sign-in button is your application's layout: Optional: If you are using the default sign-in button is your application's layout: Optional: If you are using the default sign-in button is your application's layout: Optional: If you are using the default sign-in button is your application's layout: Optional: If you are using the default sign-in button is your application's layout: Optional: If you are using the default sign-in button is you are using of the sign-in button.
